If you have questions, please contact Travis Lovett, CPIC Director at cpic@fas.harvard.edu

The Center for Public Interest Careers (CPIC), the Harvard Club of Boston, and the Harvard Alumni Association extend our warmest welcome to the attendees of the annual Harvard Nonprofit Board Recruitment Fair!

Below, you'll find brief descriptions and contact information for each of the 60 organizations represented in this publication. We hope you enjoy familiarizing yourself with the work of these organizations. Please note that while CPIC reached out to a wide-range of organizations to participate, not all of the registered organizations have worked with CPIC in the past. CPIC cannot guarantee or endorse the work of specific organizations, so attendees should note that they are responsible for exercising their own due diligence if making a commitment to a particular organization.

Actors' Shakespeare Project (ASP)

Actors' Shakespeare Project (ASP) believes Shakespeare's words are urgently relevant to our times. Working as an ensemble of resident company members, we bring these words into the voices, bodies, and imaginations of our actors, audiences and neighborhoods. We do this through creative projects, including intimate productions and community programs that are informed by the spaces in which they take place. These projects inspire civic dialogue, build relationships, strengthen communities, and reveal something about what it means to be human here and now.

Boston Graduate School of Psychoanalysis (BGSP)

At the Boston Graduate School of Psychoanalysis (BGSP), we use our understanding of unconscious dynamics to help solve problems of emotional suffering and destructive action. In this way, we free people to use their creative energy to live a satisfying life in cooperation with others. As a graduate school, we teach students to actualize this personally and professionally by bringing psychoanalysis to bear on individual, social and cultural problems. BGSP's educational programs train psychoanalysts, counselors, interdisciplinary scholars, and social justice advocates. Through our therapy center, school-based counseling internships, and work in the community, students and graduates work to help people directly improve their lives.
